CHOOSING THE GROUND.

ONE OF THREE PLACES WHERE GRANT WANTED TO REST.

The "Personal Memoirs of U. S. Grant" will not be a handsome profit--What the Family Will Do--Beautiful Tributes to the Dead--The World Weeps.

Mr. McCREGG, N. Y., July 25.--On June 24, Gen. Grant handed to Col. Grant a slip of paper, on which was written substantially this: "There are three places from which I wish a choice of burial place to be made."

"West Point I would prefer above others, but for the fact that my wife and I do not like to be buried there."

"Galena, or some place in Illinois--because from that state I received my first general's commission."

"Now York, because the people of that city befriended me in my need."

"When he had received his slip to the colonel he walked back into the sick room in a few minutes he reappeared, walking round in front of the colonel."

"I don't like this, father," the son said, holding out the slip.

"What do you think about it? You don't like it?" asked the general, in his husky whisper.

"I don't like any of it. There is no need of talking of such things."

The general took the slip, folded it, tore it lengthwise, across and again until the pieces were so small that hardly a word could have been made out of any of them, and then throwing them into the waste basket went back to his room without speaking.

This was the first time the general indicated any wish in regard to his burial. The family, however, had done something to be dying.

At that time, while some of them had not abandoned hope, the matter was discussed as a possibility that if he should die there would be little time, in the confusion now prevailing, to decide on that matter. Correspondence was accordingly opened with Gen. Sheridan, who thought, as did many others, that at the Soldiers' Home in Washington would be the best place for the general's burial, because the general said that city, and arrangements were made to take the body there. In view of the expressed wish, however, that arrangement would probably not hold. It is more than likely that he will be buried in New York.

The spot selected, whether it be Central park, as talked of in the spring, or elsewhere, will certainly be accepted by the family only on condition that Mrs. Grant may be laid beside him.

His Memoirs.

NEW YORK, July 25.--Mr. Grant's share of the proceeds of Gen. Grant's "Personal Memoirs of U. S. Grant," will be between $20,000 and $30,000, it is estimated, says a reliable source. The guarantee sales of 250,000 sets of books already made by agents, secured her of $30,000. For three thousand copies were now gathering subscriptions, and the number is not expected to be increased to 5,000 copies. Gen. Grant's son, Mr. Grant & Ward led his relatives to leave their possessions with the firm, and when the crash came it swept away not only the fortunes of Gen. Grant and of his wife and three sons, but of four families of blood relations. Gen. Grant felt responsible for the support of all those dependent upon him, and he was determined to be and for all of them he expected to make provision from what the book would yield.

Mrs. Grant, who receives the benefit of the book, without question, may use the money as she chooses, but she will undoubtedly follow out Gen. Grant's plan of becoming a U. S. Grant, Jr., may remain on his New Jersey farm.

Mrs. Nellie Sartoris will return to England, where her husband and children live. A rumor has been in circulation that the fund of $250,000 subscribed for Gen. Grant's steamer in the White Sea, which was to be put into his hands, has been given up. John T. Terry said that Governor Morgan's estate guaranteed the interest, and the investment was perfect.

THE PRISON PARTNER.

NEW YORK, July 25.--In the shoe shop at the prison, James P. Fish, ex-prisoner of the Marine bank and partner in the late firm of Grant & Ward, heard the telling of the prison life, and he said he could see the ring raised to half past over the prison. He looked longingly at the keeper's key, which volunteered the remark: "Grant is dead. Mr. Fish stood motionless for a moment, his hands by his sides and in meditation. He then raised one hand and his head sunk upon it. In this position he stood two minutes, seemingly in silent prayer, and then went to work. He uttered not a single word, though he was privileged to speak if he desired to do so.

An Alabama Opinion.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 25.--The Attorney will say: "The close of his military career was in a generous treatment of his allies for that sent a thrill of grateful recognition through the heart of the south. His conduct toward Gen. Lee and the southward of Appomattox, his generous stand in defense of their rights as prisoners, and his own honor as a soldier will always be a badge for the action of other victors and losers, and will stand as a shining example in his subsequent career."

Mr. Childs in Charge.

PHILADELPHIA, July 25.--It is learned that Mr. George W. Childs will probably select the spot for the last resting place of the dead hero. Mr. Childs is in telegraphic communication with Col. Grant, who has asked him for advice on several matters connected with the funeral preparations, and as left to Mr. Childs judgment the arrangement of all the principal points.

A Triumph.

MOBILE, Ala., July 25.--The Register shows a long review of the military and political life as follows: "The south unity with the north in paying tribute to his memory. He saved the Union. For his triumph and his time has shown to be a triumph for the south as well as the north--he is entitled to and will receive grateful tribute."

Mississippi's Mercy.

CATON, Miss., July 25.--Regret felt the hearts of our people over the death of Gen. Grant. There is but one sentiment--a great man has fallen. His faults are forgotten and his memory revered, if for no other reason than that he has ceased fighting between his and his country.

All Differences Gone.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 25.--Chas. H. Wells, managing editor of the Atlanta Constitution, said: "Extreme feeling is fast everywhere in the south and Gen. Grant's death will be a turning point for the south as well as the north--he is entitled to and will receive grateful tribute."

Two Strains of Root.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.--The annual report of the Central Pacific railway for 1884 has been issued. The gross earnings for the year were $2,301,000, being nearly $2,500,000 less than 1883. The expenditure was $2,238,000, or $63,000 greater than the previous year. The deficit, including unearned dividends paid, was $1,850,000. The directors claim there is no complaint from the government $430,000 held without sanction of law by the United States treasury.

Had Money.

PHILADELPHIA, July 25.--While Ed. Samuels, aged twelve years, residing at Samuels Lane, near Twenty, was driving a Frankford Station to meet his mother, he was attacked on the Richmond Pike by four young men. One of them held him by the horse and the others held him to the seat of the carriage. The driver, Harry Smith, and William Gibbs were arrested as the assassin, and Magistrate South held them in $1,000 bail for a further hearing. Wells is a married man.

Only Footing.

NEW YORK, July 25.--Mr. T. C. Leuter, who, a dispatch from Savannah said, has taken passage on the Chesapeake and Potomac boat for this city with the intention of jumping overboard, has arrived on the steamer. Mr. Leuter's passage under the name of Mrs. Lillian E. Spencer. The captain said she had no indication of a desire to destroy herself.

Financial Trouble Killed Him.

WILLIAMSBURG, July 25.--Frederick L. Spencer, fifty-two years old, and a prominent resident of South Windham, near Williamsburg, hanged himself. Temporary insanity induced by financial difficulties is ascribed as the cause.

ASKING FURTHER INFORMATION AS TO SIMPLIFYING THE TARIFF.

A Recommendation That the Government Distribute No More Seeds--The Cattle Men in the Indian Territory Must Go--Great Excitement--Notes.

WASHINGTON, July 25.--The circular from Secretary Manning inviting from manufacturers and others their views as to the feasibility of simplifying the tariff and making the duty specific, so as to protect home industries, was mailed to a number of the leading manufacturers. This circular had no sooner become public than requests by telegraph and mail were sent Secretary Manning for ten, twenty and in some cases as many as fifty copies of One form in Pittsburgh telegraphed for fifty additional copies. The number originally ordered was 500. A requisition was mailed on the printer for 1,500 additional copies.

The President's tariff manual promises to yield all the information desired by the secretary in sending out this circular, for prominent houses are exerting their personal influence in obtaining the fullest information called for by the secretary.

A similar circular was addressed to importers throughout the country, which will enable those who know of the great tariff practiced by underwriters to give the secretary the benefit of their views in detail. Following is the text of the circular:

"Investigation of the methods of entry and appraisal of imported merchandise shows that the tariff laws are largely evaded by undervaluation wherever the duties are level ad valorem. A remedy against this evil is the adoption of specific duties."

"With a view of obtaining information on this subject, which may be useful to congress in their legislation and serve as an aid in the improvement of the customs revenue system, it is deemed proper to ask the advice of merchants whose business may be affected by tariff legislation, and whose interests, as well as those of the government are dependent on honest and efficient administration of the tariff law."

"You are, therefore, requested to give your views as to the feasibility of simplifying the tariff and making the duties specific upon imported merchandise with which you are familiar, now subject to ad valorem rates, and also to the application of the principle is applied, together with such suggestions as you may be pleased to make toward the removal of inequalities so that the administration of the revenue laws may be rendered more effective and uniform."

"It is suggested that your reply may be accompanied by a list of the names of the specific duty which in your opinion should be levied upon the various kinds and qualities of merchandise named in such schedule, and also the rate of duty which according to your best information, would be equivalent to the present ad valorem rates."

"Information as to the extent of such duties as what extent and with respect to what classes of merchandise your firm has suffered injury from the tariff, and how, in your judgment, such injuries may be prevented, whether by specific duties or otherwise."

"Your reply will be treated as confidential if so desired."

Assistant Secretary Fairbairn has rented the office of the United States Connecting Railroad, near Farragut circle, which will be occupied on the first of November. He will take an active part in the social events of Washington during the first winter of President Cleveland's administration.

followed and this was thrown from the track. In a short time ten cars were at the point and the horses, cows and conductors driven off. To assist in making an almost impenetrable blockade wagons were run directly across the street and timbers and stones placed on the track.

After an hour spent in fruitlessly trying to get a car through the police were notified and a squad of men soon appeared on the scene. The ringleader was captured and taken to the Central station. After two hours the track was cleared and the cars resumed their run.

Royal Welcome.

TORONTO, July 25.--The most magnificent demonstration ever gotten up in Canada in connection with any military event was the reception accorded the Toronto soldiers on their return from the Northwest rebellion. The streets of the city were made resplendent with evergreen arches, flags, music, etc. The Queen's Own Rifles and Royal Grenadiers, in command of Col. Miller and Col. Grasset, respectively, were met at the depot by the leading women of the city, who presented each man with a bouquet. Capt. Howard of the Royal Grenadiers, who did a splendid execution with his Gatling gun at Robouche, was among the returning troops and was accorded a prominent place in the procession of the troops through the streets.

The mayor presented the troops with an address in behalf of the city, and when passing through a square 500 school girls sang their welcome from an elevated platform.

Looking into the Records.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 25.--Some excitement was here caused by the manufacturers of tobacco, over a recent report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and of which Collector Cox was notified. The new ruling requires that the record books containing a list of the foreign ingredients used in the manufacture of tobacco, be kept open for public inspection. Heretofore, such records have been kept secret. The ruling was brought about by a New York manufacturer asking to see the record of the manufacturers at St. Louis, which in turn asked to see the record at Louisville.

Through the Crack of a Fence.

NANVILLE, Tenn., July 25.--John R. Matty, a moonshiner, was recently killed in Canada. He was a native of Tennessee, and had been arrested for illicit distilling. Johnson and his father-in-law, named Hunt, are situated near the government. Matty threatened to kill them and his father-in-law made an attempt to shoot him, but his weapon was taken away. Matty then answered to John Johnson, and drew a pistol and fired through a crack in a fence over which he had jumped. The bullet lodged in Matty's brain

During the first half of the current year $10,000,000 have been invested in new manufacturing industries in this State. Kentucky makes a far better showing in this respect than any other State in the South. West Virginia ranks next, having invested $6,500,000.

The President is daily importuned to appoint from civil life to lieutenanties in the army. Many of these appointments are most meritorious, but the President has determined that at present he is not justified in making such appointments. He thinks vacancies should be filled from the West Point classes.

The present conduct of this State went into effect way back yonder in antebellum days. It is entirely out of date, and needs revising and amending. The only way to effect this is for the voters, one and all, to come out on the 3rd day of August and cast their vote in favor of calling a constitutional convention.

Every voter who remains away from the polls that day will be counted against the call.

The question of calling a constitutional convention to amend and revise the present State constitution will be submitted to the voters again at the approaching August election. The masses of the Democrats alike should vote in favor of the call and end the matter. The question has been before the people for several years now, and will very likely be kept before them for years to come, unless the call be voted.

The New York Sun hit the nail square on the head when it said: "By the recognized rule of all parties, the Democrats won the federal office in the last Presidential election. In this country, where the ballot boxes rule, parties could not be a successfully maintained for a single year unless men at the head of an Administration appoint as their subordinates those who concur in their measures and objects. The masses that impelled Mr. Cleveland to select Democrats to his Cabinet in the room of the Arthur Republicans demand that like changes be carried through every department of the civil service."

His good people of Warren County, Ky., are evidently in the direct excitement, and it is feared, if relief is afforded them soon, that a call for the State troops will have to be sent in. The cause of all their troubles was discovered in glancing over the columns of one of our exchanges from Bowling Green, of a recent date. By actual count we find there are already thirty-one candidates for the local office in that county, and we haven't any serious doubts but that there are quite a number of the precincts in the distant parts of the county yet to hear from. In connection herewith, we are led to observe that a good, fat, office, these hard times, furnishes an almost irresistible attraction to some people.

FOUL MURD R.

John McKnight shot While in Search of Physicians.

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., July 25.—A brutal murder was committed about twenty miles south of here. John H. McKnight went in search of physicians to attend his sick child. He had gone but short distance when he was overtaken by a man named While. When his body was riddled with buckshot and part of his head had been shot away.

The murders did not disturb the money or valuable on his person. When the person who found the body carried it into the house they discovered that McKnight's wife and child were alone sleeping. There were blood stains on the floor and bed clothing. Three rifles, two hand and pistol, and a lot of burglar's tools were found in the house. Three straggle were found in the neighborhood late in the afternoon. It is thought McKnight was an outlaw and that the murder was committed for revenge by some of his former companions.

TWO HUNDRED INJUNCTIONS.

Attorney General Stockton's Method of Making Corporations Pay Up.

TUESDAY, July 25.—Attorney General Stockton has secured an order from Chancellor Runyon for injunctions restraining one hundred and twenty-five defendants from transacting business. The injunctions are to be issued because the corporations have not paid the assessments levied by the state board of assessors. It will be several days before the injunctions will be served, and most of the companies are ignorant of the state of affairs.

The attorney general said that it was necessary to bring summary proceedings, as the tax law had been broken by so many corporations. The two hundred companies did not cover the list of delinquents. There were nearly five hundred of them. If suits were brought it would involve the state in endless litigation. If the businesses were stopped the companies would understand that that was their mistake.

A SICKENING ACCIDENT.

Ed. Schwegman Falls and Dies From the Effects.

CINCINNATI, July 25.—A most deplorable accident occurred at the wholesale carpet house of Lowry & Gobel, No. 167 Elm street. At that time Edward Schwegman, aged 19, employed as a messenger, by some unknown means fell from a second story rear window into the rotunda below.

His cry for help, as he fell and the awful sound of his body striking the hard stone, attracted the attention of other employees, who ran to his assistance. Patrol No. 1 was sent for and removed the unfortunate young man to the hospital, where an examination showed that both his legs and his right arm were broken. The fall having injured the bones protruded from the torn flesh at the elbow. He has been working for the firm but a few weeks. He lives at No. 28 Ellen street. He died within half an hour after reaching the hospital.

SEARCHED AWAY.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 25.—A mob of about fifty men surrounded the jail at Greendale, where two George H. Edwards and four of the gang who shot Mike Rogers on Monday were confined. They were after him because he had been paroled. The jailer paroled him, and sent a boy to ring an alarm bell, at which the mob hastily dispersed as the citizens began pouring out of their houses.

MR. MARTIN'S MISERY.

WHAT HE SAID HE ENDURED WITH HIS MUCH-DIVORCED WIFE.

Related to a Woman Who Had Been Three Times Separated from Her Husband. Life Was Unendurable—He Abandoned Her and Sued for Divorce.

New York, July 25.—Mr. Edward Martin gets $10,000 a year as director in a large insurance company in this city. He has a nice home at Yonkers, is sixty-three years old, and has been married to his present wife seven years. Now she is suing him for a divorce, and he is apparently as anxious to get rid of her as she is of him. A divorce suit is no new thing for the lady. She has been divorced three times, and, according to Mr. Martin, has made money every time by the separation. Before Judge Donohue, in supreme court, she asked $250 a month alimony and $500 counsel fee on the ground of abandonment.

The story of the wife's marriages and divorces is a varied one, as told by her last husband. "Her first matrimonial venture," said he, "was with marriage, and I, about who is still living. Her second was James W. Ensign, now dead, to whom she was twice married, and from whom she was twice divorced. In this last divorce, she got in settlement the house No. 357 West Thirty-fourth street, worth about $20,000, $25,000 more in cash and a wardrobe sufficient to last her a lifetime. It was always her boast that in the three divorces she had made money." Mr. Martin says he became the victim of her fourth matrimonial venture December 31, 1877. She was about thirty-eight years old and without children. He was a widower about fifty-four years, with two children—his daughter Ella, then about twenty years old, and a son, Edward, Jr., about seventeen. "The plaintiff," he said, "is a woman of strong will, ungovernable temper and determination, being possessed of abundant means of her own, being worth at least $40,000 in real and personal property, having at least $15,000 out at interest and following the practice of medicine. She is more than arbitrary in her disposition." The couple went to live at Hastings shortly after their marriage, but afterwards removed to Yonkers. Two or three times they separated, but reconciliations were effected. Finally, last year, she again abandoned him in this city, and "in bad faith, falsely, wickedly and maliciously preferred charges against him and sought to have their marriage annulled. But she abandoned the suit and promised good behavior and he forgave her once more. They subsequently moved to Yonkers, where, he says, she manifested a bitter hatred of his children, heaped insults and inhumanities upon them and drove his daughter from the house by threats of personal dishonor. She struck him in the face in the presence of his children and, he says, followed him through the streets of Yonkers dragging along upon him because he was going to a funeral. Once when driving with him she threatened to give the village a "screech," or yelling concert, if he did not at once do as she desired. On another occasion, it is said, she attempted to throw the contents of a bottle of caustic upon him. Still another time she smashed a lighted cigar he was smoking in his face because he declined to give her one.

For several months before she finally left the house, neither Mr. Martin nor his child had spoken to his wife, although they met daily at meals. He says that she left the house voluntarily February 17 last, and removed all her property. He then determined, he says, as he had given her a fair trial and found it impossible to live with her, and as he feared violence to himself and children, that he should not permit her again to enter his house. He then sent her a letter in which he said:

"In consequence of your unwomanly, unkindly and wicked conduct, I am resolved not to live with you any longer under any circumstances, and to remain under my roof. This decision is brought about by a constant fear of injury to my children and self, and you are at liberty to consider yourself as abandoned by me, and avail yourself of any remedies the law may afford you in that respect. I also desire to forbid you again entering my house, and if you do so I shall be compelled to remove you."

In her petition for alimony and counsel fees, read on motion by her counsel, the wife takes occasion to deny all portions of her husband's answer which are material to the case. She asserts that on February 18 of this year, "without just cause or provocation," he assaulted and threw her down violently, that she went to the police station to make a complaint, and when she returned found the doors locked and she was refused admittance. Under these circumstances she sought having crawled through a basement window. In addition to writing her a note forbidding her to enter his house and assaulting her, she alleges that she was ill-treated by his children, and that she did not commit the acts of cruelty of which he complains.

Hannah Alwood, a domestic in the family, testified to Mrs. Martin throwing a steak on the tablecloth and a teapot at Mr. Martin. After the reading of the papers and the argument of counsel, Judge Donohue took the papers and reserved his decision.
